Hearing to examine proposed Homedale library district

Vote on taxing district could come in fall

A vote on establishing a taxing district for Homedale's library might come in November.

The Board of County Commissioners will sit for a public hearing on drawing district boundaries at 10 a.m., on Monday, Aug. 15.

Changing the boundary lines from the city limits to the joint school district boundary is the next step in the process.

Canyon County commissioners will hold a public hearing on the portion of proposed district north of the Snake River at 10 a.m., today. In its legal notice, Canyon County calls the proposed district the "Homedale Public Library taxing district" and includes a legal description of the boundaries.

The Canyon County notice also lists the scope of details on which public comment will be taken now that

HSD seeks vacation of E. Owyhee

One preschool class full; school registration starts

With the school year less than three weeks away, changes could be coming to Homedale School District's footprint.

The district has petitioned the City of Homedale to consider vacating the 100 block of East Owyhee Avenue, closing the street to through traffic.

After acquiring the old St. Hubert's Catholic Church property from the Archdiocese of Boise, the school district owns all property with addresses assigned to Owyhee Avenue as well as the portion of North 2nd Street North from its intersection with East Owyhee to the alley on the northern boundary of the school property.

A public hearing will be held during next Wednesday's city council meeting to get input on the district's vacation proposal. Maps of the potentially affected area are available at City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

Another public hearing will be held to consider the district's petition for a zoning change in the 100 block of East Owyhee Avenue from commercial to public to align with zoning for all other areas containing school property.

The council meeting begins at 6 p.m., inside the magistrate courtroom at City Hall.

Mustang Mania gives 4-H'er head start as Owyhee County horse show approaches

Marsing girl was runner-up in July contest in Nampa

Alicia Worley put in extra time getting ready for the Owyhee County 4-H Horse Show.

The 10-year-old Marsing girl spent part of her spring training a mustang, too.

But, even though Alicia and Clover finished second in July's Mustang Mania, the pair won't be making an appearance in a full-blown horse show just yet.

Clover will be part of the green horse competition, though.

"I think this year, at fair, is going to be my best year yet, and I can't wait to show Butterscotch and Clover," Alicia wrote in her 4-H report.

The incoming fifth-grader, who will be in her mom's class at Homedale Middle School when the year starts on Aug. 22, is competing in the Junior Division for Reynolds Creek 4-H.

Michelle Parr said Alicia and Butterscotch have been a riding pair since both were 4 years old, and Alicia has been in the 4-H horse program for two years. They've competed in jumper shows, too.

"They have also been on many trails and camping trips," the girl's mother said. "We even went to the Black Hills in South Dakota."

Butterscotch is the horse Alicia took through winter paces at Birt Arena with local trainer Matt Zimmerman.

"Zimmerman clinics were fun, but also a lot of work," Alicia wrote in her 4-H report. "We would get home from school and rush to get

Rodeo queen contestants announced; speeches set Monday

Local girl is one of three contestants

by Mandi Boren

For The Owyhee Avalanche

Fair is in the air and three young ladies, including one local, are hopeful they will be the next Miss Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo.

Queen contestants visited rodeo sponsors last Wednesday as current Queen Ella Boren and coordinator Annie Phelps led the girls through Homedale, Marsing, Melba, Caldwell and other surrounding towns to hang advertisement posters.

The competition begins at 7 p.m., on Monday with an evening of speeches and modeling and will conclude Saturday, Aug. 13 with coronation during the evening rodeo.

Karson Griggs is the 17-year-old daughter of Nichole Griggs and a 2022 graduate of Marsing High School. In her spare time, Karson enjoys drawing, riding her horse, participating in her local FFA chapter and just being outside. Karson plans to continue her studies in the fall at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls. Karson will be riding her horse Cash in the competition.

Becky Green

Becky Green is the 16-year-old daughter of Bob and Jean Green of Meridian. She is a student at Bishop Kelly High School in Boise where she is involved in the Young Entrepreneurs Association and is president of the student Pro-Life Club.

Becky has also participated in the District 2 High School Rodeo Association and performed last month in Nampa as a member of the 2022 Snake River Stampeders. In her spare time, Becky enjoys swimming, lake activities, cooking, working outside and riding her horse. Becky will compete on her horse Penny.

Allison Hubler is the 18-year-old daughter of Eric and Gen Hubler of Caldwell.

Tolmie's Ace Hardware in Homedale was one of the many local businesses that Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Queen Ella Boren (second from right) and candidates Karson Griggs (left of Boren) and Allison Hubler visited last Wednesday to put up posters advertising this year's event, which begins next Wednesday. A third candidate — Becky Green — was unable to attend. Submitted photo

Allison is a 2022 graduate of Vallivue High School. While in school, Allison participated in FFA, track, volleyball, hockey, choir, 4-H and the Owyhee County Horse Program.

In her spare time, Allison enjoys volunteering, singing, skiing and flying airplanes with her dad. Allison also has an artistic side and loves to paint. Allison has spent her winters teaching ice skating to children at Indian Creek Plaza in Caldwell.

Allison plans to further her education in the fall at the College of Southern Idaho. Allison will ride her horse Copper in the competition.

Contestants will have a busy week of scheduled events including a horsemanship competition, personal interviews, riding during each rodeo performance, and an appearance at the Homedale Senior Center's Buckaroo Breakfast which has returned this year.

All events, except for personal interviews, are open to the public:

This project was supported, in part by grant number 21021DMISH-00 from the U.S. Administration for Community Living, Department of Health and Human Services, Washington, D.C. 20201.

Sauer said the change would create a safer school bus drop-off area and could improve turning radius for the transports.

“We will also be creating a new bus drop-off area on the district’s property between the alley and the (Trojan Tots Preschool),” he said. “Students will be crossing the proposed vacated street to get to the high school.

“The vacation of the street is a key piece in improving safety for our students.”

On the subject of transportation, Sauer said the district still has an opening for a bus driver for the 2022-23 school year. One paraprofessional position each at the middle school and the high school remains unfilled, too.

The east portion of the St. Hubert’s property has been designated for parking, and the old rectory will open Aug. 22 as the district’s preschool.

The red brick building was painted white and bunting applied prior to Thursday’s open house and registration event.

“Our first open house/registration went great,” Trojan Tots coordinator Erica Dines said. “We filled one class and have started on a second class.”

Dines will have a table set up today during the elementary school registration event, too.

The registration schedule for all schools includes:

graders new to HES, 9 a.m., to 7 p.m.

Next Wednesday — Students new to the district, 10 a.m., to noon, HHS

Public Invited to Comment On PCB Permit Renewal for US Ecology Idaho Facility in Grand View, ID

The United States Environmental Protection Agency is requesting public comment on its proposed renewal and modification of US Ecology Idaho's (USEI) permit to manage polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) wastes at its facility in Grand View, ID. EPA has evaluated the PCB Permit Renewal Application and determined that operation of this commercial disposal facility does not pose an unreasonable risk of injury to human health or the environment. EPA is proposing to approve the renewal and modification of this PCB Permit to USEI as the current Owner and Operator of the Facility. EPA's proposed Approval to renew the permit will allow USEI to:

- Continue to operate a commercial PCB chemical waste landfill facility in Grand View, Idaho;
- Use an existing RCRA only permitted landfill for PCB disposal in addition to existing landfill cells;
- Temporarily store containerized PCB waste in RCRA permitted hazardous waste storage areas;
- Solidify and stabilize some RCRA Hazardous Waste with PCBs in it prior to disposal in order to meet RCRA Land Disposal Restrictions; and
- Encapsulate PCB containing hazardous debris.

The proposed Approval does not authorize any new construction or expansion of the USEI Facility.

EPA is also, as required by Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, requesting public comment on its determination that historic properties will not be affected by the Approval decision.

PUBLIC COMMENTS: The EPA invites you to comment on the proposed renewal of USEI's PCB permit. Comments may be submitted during a 30-day public comment period which begins on August 3, 2022 and ends on September 2, 2022. Comments may be submitted in writing via mail or email. Written comments should be emailed or postmarked on or before September 2, 2022 and sent to:

Julie Congdon, Community Involvement Coordinator
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Region 10
1200 6th Avenue, Suite 155 (12-D12)
Seattle, WA 98101-3140

Phone: (800) 424-4372, x.2752
Email: congdon.julie@epa.gov

A public hearing, if held, will be conducted virtually. A virtual public hearing involves community members providing verbal comments to EPA. Any public hearing will not include a question and answer session. EPA will consider holding a public hearing if the following conditions are met:

- Any request for a virtual public hearing is received by Ronald Leach via e-mail (leach.ronald@epa.gov) on or before September 2, 2022. The request for a virtual public hearing must state the nature of the comments that will be presented during the hearing, and
- There is significant interest in holding a virtual public hearing.

If you have questions or would like more information, you may call Ronald Leach, U.S. EPA Project Manager, at (800) 424-4372, x. 6907 or via email at leach.ronald@epa.gov. Electronic copies of EPA's proposed PCB permit and other relevant documents are available at: <https://www.epa.gov/publicnotices/pcb-permit-renewal-us-ecology-idaho> EPA also maintains an administrative record supporting the proposed decision. Copies and other information may be requested by contacting Ronald Leach.

More Information, including a fact sheet about the proposed renewal, is available online at: <https://www.epa.gov/publicnotices/pcb-permit-renewal-us-ecology-idaho>

Find avenues to become an engaged community member

Have you ever thought about how much the community you live in affects your daily life? From the roads you drive on to the school you send your kids to, community plays a major role in our lives. For these reasons and many others, your voice, ideas, and feedback are important parts of making your community successful. It is easy to forget what a vital role you play in your community, and that you have the power to make it a better place.

Cassandra Moody

Here are four ways you can get involved:

- Donate your time — Volunteering at community events is not only a great way to serve your community, but it also provides an excellent opportunity to meet your fellow community members. Helping with fundraisers, volunteering at schools and sporting events, or spending time at local non-profit organizations are just a few ways you can do so.
- Another way you can donate your time is by being actively engaged in what’s happening in your community. Taking the time to attend city council meetings, school board meetings, and other events can help you to be a more informed citizen and become a better advocate for your community.
- Use your voice — You might be thinking, “I just don’t have the time to add another thing to my plate.” That’s OK. There are several other avenues to being involved. One of the most important ways is using your voice.
- It is important to be a community member who advocates for what they believe in. One of the main ways to do so is by voting in local elections. Plan your voting day ahead of time to ensure you make time to get to the polls.

You can also use your voice by contacting local government representatives and advocating for what you believe your community needs.

Finally, you can use your voice to be an uplifting member of the community. Supporting local events, sports teams, or community members through your words is a great way to be an encouraging community member.

- Donate your resources — There are several ways you can give back to the community through resources.
- A great way to do this is by donating food to local food banks, donating books to your local library, monetarily supporting a sports team or a 4-H/FFA member at your county fair, and much more. Finding a need in your community and doing what you can to address it can make all the difference.
- Shop locally — Shopping locally whenever possible is another great way to show support to your community. Whether it is at your local farmers market or grocery store, you are supporting the people who reside in your community. This encourages a strong economy, as well as a sense of community and fellowship within your town.
- Not only is being involved helpful to your community, but it can also be beneficial to you. Building relationships, making connections, and strengthening the community you live in are just a few benefits.
- Next time you see a need in your community, help in any way you can.

Obituary

Philip “Gary” Cunningham

Philip “Gary” Cunningham was born September 9, 1936, to Gerald and Gertrude Cunningham in Norfolk, Nebraska. Because of the drought and depression in Nebraska, the family moved to Grants Pass, Oregon, to farm and milk cows.

Gary began his formal education in a 4-room school in Grants Pass, Oregon. His teacher stated Gary spent most of his first year looking out the window daydreaming about buying cattle and farming with Gerald. Subsequently, he had to repeat the first grade in 1944.

By age six, Gary was certain he wanted to follow in his dad’s footsteps and be a farmer. When the family moved to Grand View, Gary was a freshman in high school. His priority was farming not finding a girlfriend. His favorite tasks were combining grain and plowing.

In 1944, Sharon was born and the family moved to the Lake Hazel Community near Meridian, Idaho. Gerald farmed forty acres and did custom work to support his family. He desired to enlarge the family operation so in 1952, he purchased 309 acres near Grand View, Idaho.

April joined the family in 1955. This was the Spring Gary graduated from high school. Now he could farm full-time.

Gary met Jerry at an Oreana dance in the winter of 1959. He was encouraged to start socializing more by his grandmother, Hannah Cunningham, and his parents. At the 1960 Cattleman Dance at Silver City, Gary asked Jerry if he could drive her home. Gary’s friend, Lynn Messenger, followed suit and asked Jerry’s friend, Janet Schroll, if he could drive Janet home as well. This set in motion Gary and Jerry’s dating relationship. They enjoyed going to the movies, bowling, and frequently attended dances around the valley.

In 1961, Jerry was about to graduate from high school and attend the University of Idaho. Gary was not in favor of her plan because he had grown very fond of her by this time and Jerry felt the same about Gary. In light of these feelings, Jerry changed her plans and went off to Boise Junior College.

By the winter of 1962, the deal was sealed and a wedding date was set. After the wedding, the couple honeymooned in San Francisco.

Gary and Jerry began their married life in Grand View in a beautiful, remodeled home. Gary continued to farm with his dad, and Jerry became a homemaker.

In 1967, Gerald, Gertrude, Gary, and Jerry decided to develop 1,280 acres of desert entry above Grand View. Each person could file on 320 acres. Gary, while farming 489 acres in Grand View, developed the water system out of the Snake River for the project. During this time, Gerald and Gertrude were running Cunningham Equipment, a Case Dealership in Boise. The project was sold in 1970.

In 1972, Gary and Jerry purchased 120 acres from Gerald to have a farm of their own. In 1980, they added another eighty acres to their operation. Not long after this purchase, another ninety-one acres was rented near Grand View from Jerry’s parents, David and Helen Trauernicht, and sixty acres from Gerald and Gertrude Cunningham

In 1963, a beautiful baby girl, Kimberly, was added to the family and in 1967, their handsome son, Stacey, was born.

Through the years, Gary enjoyed growing sweet corn certified seed, seed peas, sugar beets, wheat, barley, and pinto beans.

Even though farming was Gary’s passion, he enjoyed taking trips in the fall with the family to Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, Zion Park, and Disneyland.

In 2008, Gary and Jerry decided it was time to rent the farm to Scott Bennett, so they could travel and spend more time camping with family. Gary was in a quandary because he missed farming so he did custom work for Scott and other farmers, spring plowing, ground working, combining wheat, hauling sugar beets, and combining corn.

In 2021 and 2022, nine pivots were installed on 360 acres, taking advantage of incentive programs offered by Idaho Power. This change was a little bumpy at first, but eventually brought about a more streamlined irrigation process.

In 2022, Gary and Jerry celebrated sixty wonderful years of marriage with a party at the Rimrock Senior Center. A wonderful time was shared by all who attended.

Gary accepted the Lord as his Savior prior to his death and prayed for his family daily. He set a good example for his family about helping those in need and giving back to the community whenever you can.

He touched many lives with his selfless regard for those going through rough times, but did it in such a way that they did not feel like he was giving them a handout.

He loved his family very much and had the opportunity to meet his first great-granddaughter, Lucille, 2 weeks before he passed away.

We are going to miss you, Gary. It has been an honor to know you and call you Dad, Husband, Uncle, and Friend.

A special thanks to Stace Cunningham, Kim Cunningham, Rachel Lloyd, and Kristine Giesbrecht for the fantastic care they provided for Gary. We greatly appreciate the Grand View Community for their assistance and the Horizon Health and Hospice team for their support and encouragement.

The Celebration of Life for Gary will be August 13, 2022 at Valley Christian Fellowship located at 37866 State Highway 78, Grand View, Idaho. The service will start at 10 am followed by a graveside service at Riverside Cemetery in Grand View. Arrangements under the care of Rost Funeral Home, McMurtrey Chapel. A dinner will follow for those attending at Rimrock Senior Center located at 525 Main Street in Grand View.

Memorials can be sent to Knight Community Church, P.O. Box 146, Grand View, ID 83624 or Rimock Senior Center, P.O. Box 453, Grand View, ID 83624.

Masons blood drive postponed until October

The blood drive planned for Homedale later this month has been postponed to October.

Randy King, the Silver City Masonic Lodge No. 13 worshipful master, said early last week that the American Red Cross asked to move the blood drive to a cooler month because the lodge at 19 W. Idaho Ave., in Homedale doesn’t have air conditioning.

The blood drive had been planned for the afternoon of Monday, Aug. 15.

No new time or date has been set other than it will be held in October.

Obituaries

Bonnie J. Walker

Bonnie J. Walker was born in Boise, Idaho on July 27, 1946, to Elmer Call and Ferris Gee Barlow. She grew up on a farm on Jump Creek Road between Marsing and Homedale. She learned hard work early on the farm and enjoyed her school years in the Marsing School District. After high school she attended Ricks College in Rexburg Idaho; after her schooling she remained in Rexburg working. There she met her husband, Calvin Walker, who was raised in Lewisville, Idaho; they married November 27, 1970 at Homedale.

After marriage they relocated to Jump Creek Road and worked on the Barlow family farm. Their first daughter, Brenda, was born in 1971, but passed away in 1975 in an accident. Melanie, Vance B, Alison and Sarah followed.

Bonnie and Calvin bought their own property next to the family farm and built their house in the 1980s. She loved her home, which she decorated for every holiday, and her yard, which she kept filled with flowers. But mostly she loved her family and tried to raise them well. She worked as office manager for Scott Refrigeration for several years.

After retirement, she started substitute teaching for the Homedale School District and was very good at it. She loved working with the kids and became “Grandma” to many of her grandkids’ friends at school. She went to graduation every year to watch the kids move on in life and to spray them with silly string. She was a faithful member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served in many callings with the women, children and youth. She taught early morning seminary for several years.

She is survived by her husband of nearly 52 years, Calvin Walker, of Homedale. Also surviving are her children, Melanie Walker of Wilder, Idaho; Vance B Walker of Marsing, Idaho; Alison (Tom) Bicandi of Middleton, Idaho; and Sarah (Tom) Nothnagel of Brigham City, Utah. She is also survived by grandchildren, Brodee Walker, Blake Walker, Brock Walker, Bradley Walker, Lucas Bicandi, Colton Bicandi, and Grace Bicandi, and great-grandson, Braxton Walker. Also surviving are sister, Charlene Barlow, and brother, Kevin (Karen) Barlow. She is survived and loved by cousins and many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her parents, her daughter Brenda and grandson Mason Price.

Services were held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Homedale with a viewing at 9:30 a.m. A viewing was held Friday from 5-7 p.m. at Dakan Funeral Home in Caldwell.

Joshua James Waller (“lil JJ”)

“Lil JJ” to Nana and Papa was born on June 30, 1998, to Karrie Waller at Mercy Medical Center in Nampa, Idaho being the first and only grandson to Jerry and Jane Nestor. Josh’s entire life was spent being raised and living in Homedale, Idaho. Josh passed away on June 26, 2022.

At the early age of 5 years old Josh learned to bowl. His love of bowling continued from this early age into his teenage years and into adulthood. He bowled individually and with many teams. Josh was a talented bowler, earning many awards and scholarships over the years.

Josh was a part of Pathfinder Club as the result of a friendship that was forged with the Martell family; they purchased his Great Grandma Proctor’s property when Josh was young.

One of Josh’s greatest accomplishments was graduating from Homedale High School in May of 2016. He did this with the help of Karla Haylett. Josh was voted class clown by his peers. After high school, Josh attended Lewis and Clark College and the Job Corps.

Josh had a special relationship with his Nana Jane and Papa Jerry. He loved to go swimming at his Uncle John and Aunt Rae’s house. Josh also loved to fish. Josh would fish every year with Todd at the Marsing Free Fishing Day Event, even winning the tournament one year. Josh loved to play dice with his mom and spent many a Saturday evening with her and her friends rolling dice and showing off his sense of humor.

Josh knew no strangers. He was fiercely loyal to his friends and willing to help anyone. He had a sense of humor as big as his heart.

Josh was preceded in death by his Papa, Jerry Nestor, his Uncle Randy Nestor, Uncle James (Jim) Proctor, Great-Grandma Lucille Proctor and Great-Grandparents Grace and Joe Nestor.

Josh is survived by his mother Karrie Waller (Todd Dymock), Nana Jane Nestor, a large extended family and many friends.

Services will be held at the Homedale Basque Center, 333 S Main St., Homedale ID on Saturday, August 6th, 2022, at 11 am.

Owyhee towns start own dog kennels

HPD program fundraiser ongoing

Since the City of Wilder shut down its dog kennels, Homedale and Marsing city officials have been working on finding alternatives.

The Homedale Police Department’s animal control division now has kennels located on donated commercial property.

Marsing’s animal control solution is to refurbish old kennels located at the city’s wastewater treatment plant. The city council recently authorized up to $3,000 for electrical work. Heat, lights and fencing had already been added.

A Homedale community member and businesses have joined forces to raise money for the city’s dog kennels to help buy food and other supplies.

The winning tickets for several raffle prizes will be drawn on Saturday, Aug. 13.

Paul Russell, Rockslide Excavation & Trucking, The Dog Spa, Albertsons, and Four Seasons Landscaping are listed as sponsors for the prizes, including:

- Gas grill
- Chainsaw
- Youth bicycle and helmet
- Adult bicycle
- $50 gift card to The Dog Spa

Tickets cost $2 each and $20 for 15.

To buy tickets, contact Russell at (208) 830-1054, Marc Tidalgo at The Dog Spa at (208) 337-4270, Amanda Harpe at Rockslide at (208) 696-9289, or Four Seasons at (208) 230-2834.

Homedale Police hawkish on bird of prey

Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller examines a juvenile hawk from a safe distance to determine any injuries Thursday on the grounds of the new Trojan Tots public preschool.

Eidemiller, Andrew Arnold and Lisette Llamas from HPD responded to the report of the injured raptor and tried to determine from which tree it may have fallen — all while the bird’s mother squawked and flew from tree-to-tree in the neighborhood.

Although Idaho Fish and Game Sr. Conservation Officer Craig Mickelson was in contact with the HPD officers, Eidemiller said a raptor rescue specialist out of Middleton took possession of the bird after the chief corralled it with a towel.

Community markets set

Local farmers markets are still welcoming vendors and participants.

From 11 a.m., to 3 p.m., on Saturday an end-of-summer bash is promised at the Snake River Country Market at Marsing City Park.

Market coordinator Megan Poole reports she has reserved two bounce houses, and there will be live music and child-friendly booths and activities.

The Adrian Community Market is back from 3 p.m., to 7 p.m., on Friday on Oregon Street.

The market has added something called a Community Table at which youth from the community sell goods for vendors who may not have enough for their own booth or are trying to beat the heat.

A small percentage is charged for the service. Call Heidi Purnell at (541) 709-1391 or visit the market’s Facebook page for more information.

✓ Horse: Junior Division competitor brings Butterscotch to county show chores done, then load up and go to Birt Arena.”

Alicia said she “learned a lot about leads, and side-passing and moving my horse off of my leg.”

Butterscotch continued to improve through the clinics.

Alicia kept a journal of the things she learned at the clinics, and she and Butterscotch would work on them later.

But, just in case that wasn’t enough horse life for Alicia, her mother came to her one day and asked if she’d be interested in taking a run at Mustang Mania. The training and performance competition culminates each summer at the Idaho Horse Park in Nampa.

Alicia signed up just in case, but serendipity was lurking.

During preview day on Feb. 26, she fought windy conditions to carry a piece of paper listing horses that she had liked when viewing photographs.

She lost control of the paper and it blew into the holding pen. Her No. 2 pick walked over and sniffed the paper.

“Two of the staff members asked if that horse was on my list,” Alicia wrote in her report. “I said, ‘Yes.’ They said she should be on the top of my list. I agreed and moved her to the top and turned in my paper.”

On selection day, Alicia got her pick. She named the red mare Clover because she had been gathered from the Bureau of Land Management’s Meadow Valley Mountains Horse Management Area in Nevada.

Parr said the 2-year-old horse was gathered in December 2020 and moved to the Boise corrals because of drought and fires.

“Clover has been the sweetest horse and so fun for Alicia,” the girl’s mother said.

Clover was returned to Matt Zimmerman Horse Training, which is owned by a man who won the Extreme Mustang Makeover a decade ago.

After three days of coaching from the rail with haltering, leading, picking up feet and trailer loading, Alicia brought Clover home to continue daily (and sometimes, two-a-day, Parr said) training.

Using tarps, a huge ball, bridges, logs and, “just about anything she could find,” Parr said, Alicia acclimated Clover to domestic life.

“Clover took to it very well and loves anything Alicia does with her,” Parr said. “Even loading her in the pickup, Clover will go hop in the back of the pickup, if it is out in the arena.”

Jumping into the bed of the family’s 1978 Ford pickup was actually part of the skills Alicia showed off during Mustang Mania. Alicia and Clover were overall runners-up.

Clover loaded into that old pickup as part of the freestyle portion of the Mustang Mania contest. Alicia also competed in handling and conditioning and trail.

In handling and conditioning, Alicia let Clover loose in a round pen so the judges could gauge her body condition. Then Alicia led the mare out of the pen to a barrel to brush her before trotting the horse through some cones, pivoting, picking up feet and loading into a trailer.

Clover was judged fourth out of more than 30 entries in handling and conditioning.

In trail, Alicia walked Clover over a bridge, and she lunged over poles, side-passed and did a 360-degree turn. The horse also backed through an “L” pattern and trotted around barrels.

Clover took seventh in that part of the competition.

“Alicia is planning to keep Clover. She would like to continue Clover’s training and eventually go to jumper shows, 4-H and trail riding,” Parr said.

“Clover settled into our family very quickly. We knew right away that she’d be hard to let go, but left the decision to keep her up to Alicia.”

C. J. Strike yields another record catfish

For the second time this year, a Treasure Valley angler has pulled a state-record catfish from C. J. Strike Reservoir. But Paul Newman wasn't looking for catfish during his July 20 trip to the lake. Although he was hoping to catch a sturgeon, the Fruitland fisherman did come away with a record-setting channel catfish. Newman's 42.5-inch catch outpaced the previous record fish (33 inches), which Reed Monson landed at Lake Lowell in 2020. Although Newman was planning catch-and-release, he did put the fish on a digital scale before returning it to the reservoir's depths. The catfish weighed in at 37 pounds, dethroning a catch at C. J. only a few weeks earlier for the state's certified weight record. Cody Kastner hauled in a 32.9-pound catfish. On July 9, Homedale's Jared Holt beat his own state catch-and-release mark when he reeled a record flathead catfish out of the Snake River. — Idaho Department of Fish and Game natural resource program coordinator Martin Koenig provided the information for this article.

Jordan Valley team roper reaches NHSFR short go

Birch Eiguren of Jordan Valley and his team roping partner finished 20th in the July 23 short go at the National High School Finals Rodeo. Eiguren and Caldwell's Devon McDaniel were 16th after the long go portion of the rodeo in Gillette, Wyo., with an aggregate of 17.92 seconds. The pair had the sixth-fastest time in the second long-go at 6.45. That time was the third-best in the July 20 evening performance. Eiguren and McDaniel had the eighth-fastest time during their first go-round performance (11.47), which was the 38th-best time once all competitors had notched one run. Melba's Brenna Brown also finished in the top 20 overall, tying for 12th in girls' cutting. She was tied for 11th in the short go with 140 points, and had top-five runs in both long go performances. She was eighth overall at the end of the first go-round. Wilder's Sloan Macfarlane finished 15th overall in reined cow horse with 290 points. She was fourth in the first go-round, scoring 287 points in the July 17 evening performance. She also took fourth in the July 22 morning second go performance with the 290. Sammy Saunders of Homedale had the second-fastest run during his second go-round performance Friday morning in tie down roping, catching his calf in 10.07 seconds. The team wound up 14th overall in the second long go standings. Three Creek's Will Brackett finished 24th overall in boys' cutting with 279 points. He scored a third-best 141 on the morning of July 20, placing him 18th overall at the end of the first go. Saunders and McFarlane roped their steer in 11.14 seconds during a July 21 performance, which placed them 31st overall in the second go-round.

OCA attendance wanes, but vigilance remains

Ranchers hear about modernization of tags, brands at summer meeting

Technology, tradition and Tindalls were major topics Saturday for the county's cattle ranchers.

Board president Oscar Evans rounded up speakers versed in the industry's technological advances for the 144th annual Owyhee Cattlemen's Association summer meeting in Silver City.

Grasmere's Dave Tindall accepted the OCA Honorary Life Member Award on behalf of himself and his late wife Celia and reminded his fellow members what speakers before him had said:

Vigilance is vital.

Both Evans — explicitly — and Idaho Cattle Association president Mark Pratt — implicitly — lamented the lack of ranchers in the room Saturday.

"Apathy and complacency are silent killers," Evans said during his presidential report. "It's hard to see."

"When I look around the room, I see as many speakers and presenters as I do members."

Evans asked rhetorically if "small organizations" like the OCA were still needed, and he answered the question with a plea to keep building up the group by discussing issues and using with meaningful interaction to drown out social media warriors' memes and barbs.

"I'm not talking about Facebook friends," he said. "I'm talking about having a coffee, or an adult beverage, or a water and having a real talk about the issues."

"The Owyhee Cattlemen's Association is strong, but it can be stronger, and it's needed."

Dave's youngest son, Zach Tindall, continues the tradition and seemed to have luck on his side Saturday. Amid the ribbing of OCA secretary-treasurer Scott Jensen, who was calling the game, and the majority of the playfully frustrated membership, Zach swept the deck o' cards raffles.

Another son, Matt Tindall who helps manage a feedlot, pressed State Veterinarian Dr. Scott Leibsle about the pending switch to radio frequency identification tags (RF ID) and away from metal ear tags to keep track of interstate transportation of cattle.

Leibsle said the federal government hasn't started the clock on its plan to use the technology to solidify traceability of animals as a tool to prevent the spread of disease.

The federal government has a three-year timeline to phase out metal ear tags and mandate the RF ID tags for interstate transportation, but Leibsle said it's unknown when that plan will go into effect.

Matt Tindall worries about the efficiency of the tags at feedlots when a large number of cows are being shipped. Each animal would have a unique RF ID that would be scanned by equipment attached to the shipping alley. Non-reads happen, and Tindall is concerned that a cow missing its reading will disrupt the entire process and cost his team time and money to re-run cattle.

Leibsle said that tagged cattle won't be scrutinized so closely that one missed tag out of 100 head will matter.

High-frequency tags are best suited for feedlots and sales yards readers. Low-frequency tags can be used with range cattle where it's possible to use a hand wand reader in close proximity to the animal. Leibsle said that readers are not automatically internet connected and ranchers can use Bluetooth to store information on their smartphones when internet service isn't available to upload info.

The federal government has provided the Idaho State Department of Agriculture with tags to distribute free to veterinarians who in turn will tag the cattle of their producer clients. Leibsle said the feds are giving Idaho $250,000 a year for the program, but there's no indication how long the support will last.

Five of the state's 81 sales yards have software in place to gather information on movement and vaccinations for the ISDA.

The state agency also has a program to loan tag readers to veterinarians and producers, Leibsle said.

Leibsle stressed that — although the tags, which are commercially available, are part of a proposed federal program — the federal government must request access to information stored in the state's database.

The RF ID traceability program will help keep the nation's cattle herd healthy, the state's top vet said.

"In the event of a catastrophic disease, we'll have the ability to identify and track that outbreak and to follow that disease and its spread across state lines," Leibsle said.

Dave Tindall accepted the OCA Honorary Life Member Award on behalf of himself and his late wife, Celia. Past president Scott Bunderson made the presentation, saying "These folks have done an excellent job and have been cornerstones of the community." From left: Tindall's sons, former OCA president Matt and Zach, Tindall, grandson Rowdy Law, and daughter Sue Law.

In neighboring states, such as Idaho and Oregon and Nevada, where one producer may have pastures on both sides of the state line, Leibsle said there are governmental agreements in place to make exceptions to the traceability rules. Idaho has such agreements with all border states except Washington and Montana, which backed out of their agreements.

Traceability through RF ID tags already has played a large role in preserving chicken production during the recent avian flu outbreak, Leibsle said.

The vet stressed that the tags are not necessary to transport cattle within Idaho. Under the upcoming federal program, tags will be required only when animals are moved across state lines.

"Idaho has no intention to mandate tags for in-state cattle," he said.

Shane Kerner and Kody Dee Williams, local territorial representatives for the merged companies of Merck and All-Flex, were on hand to discuss how the tags can help ranchers keep track of the individual animals in their inventory with phone apps linking information to spreadsheets.

Williams pointed out that so-called 840 low-frequency tags, which are orange, work with readers from all manufacturers, but the high-frequency tags are not universal.

The tags are similar to the technology fishery biologists use to keep track of "tagged" salmon, the reps said.

Idaho State Brand Inspector Cody Burlile also had technology on his mind as he stood at the OCA podium Saturday.

The plan to allow his staff to perform electronic (or paperless) brand inspections in the field is progressing after Washington state provided software to Idaho free of charge except for $1,800 for technical work on the program. After a failed agreement with a contractor, Burlile reached out to the neighboring government. He said there is no timeline for the rollout.

Idaho State Veterinarian Scott Leibsle holds up a wand used to read livestock tags during a discussion about traceability.

The department already has software in the office to inspect brands electronically, but Burlile said adding the tool in the field will help clear up ownership questions before animals are shipped.

"It will eliminate a lot of problems to get inspected at ranches because local brand inspectors will know the cattle (better) and it will be easier to clear up problems," Burlile said.

Brand issues at the sales yard or packing house could hold up payment to producers selling cattle, he said.

These topics are nothing new for cattlemen, and perhaps no one in the room knew that better than Bruneau rancher Eric Davis, a former National Beef Cattle Association president who made a rare appearance thanks to Dave Tindall, and received an appropriate standing ovation.

Tindall reflected on his time in "this circle of life," and thought about the ranchers — like Davis and his own father and grandfather — who had come before him, both in his family's 137-year-old operation and all over Owyhee County.

"When we were kids, all those brands were here," he said, motioning to the wooden blocks that ring the top of the walls inside the Silver City Schoolhouse. "One thing that they left in my mind is, 'Never quit. We're here to stay.'"

"There's been a lot of change, but we're still here today. We're still running cattle in Owyhee County. This is our 137th year in Owyhee County. We've never got off that rock."

Sights from OCA summer meeting in Silver

Clockwise from above:
Past president Scott Bunderson received a personalized Ken's Custom Tents rifle scabbard from his partner Debbie as a present upon his leaving the board of directors. Debbie said Scott probably had spent enough money in deck o'cards raffles — which he never wins — to buy a scabbard outright. Rusty Gill of Grand View was elected to take Bunderson's place on the board, while Jordan Valley's Wyatt Stanford will succeed retiring director Ira Brackett.

New OCA board president Rex Hoagland of Melba (left) accepts the gavel from outgoing president Oscar Evans of Homedale moments before closing the meeting.

Bunderson and Evans presented Deidre Erwin and her daughter, Ainsley, with a plaque and handmade artwork in appreciation of the service the late Russ Erwin provided to the OCA. Erwin died while on the board, and Evans said Saturday the organization is in process of finding a successor.

The void after columnist Baxter Black is keenly felt

The recent passing of Baxter Black leaves a void that will be impossible to fill. He spent his internship in Idaho's Owyhees making many friends, gaining material for his writing and poetry. From that time, his account of Tex Payne's elimination of a corn with hammer, anvil and hoof nippers stands out.

Along with artist Charley Russell, Baxter could paint a picture with words — words that portrayed our culture and heritage as only they could.

From Washington Legislative proposals will make retirement saving easier for Americans

Idahoans work very hard. Some work well beyond a typical retirement age. Having the retirement savings necessary to enable Idahoans to choose whether to work, rather than needing to work, in senior years can better ensure a secure and enjoyable retirement. As Ranking Member of the U.S. Senate Finance Committee, I worked with Finance Committee Chairman Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) to craft the Enhancing Americans Retirement Now (EARN) Act that would expand opportunities for Americans to increase their retirement savings and improve workers' long-term financial well-being. The committee approved the EARN Act unanimously (28-0), paving the way for its enactment.

Retirement savings statistics based on survey data including statistics published by Annuity.org are concerning:

- According to the Transamerica Center for Retirement, the median total household retirement savings across all workers is approximately $93,000;
- Women have smaller retirement savings overall, with an average $57,000 saved, compared to men's $118,000;
- Forty-eight percent of workers believe they do not make enough money to adequately save for retirement; and
- Twenty-two percent of Americans have less than $5,000 saved for retirement, while 15 percent have no retirement savings whatsoever.

In 2019, Congress passed and President Trump signed into law the Setting Every Community Up for Retirement Enhancement (SECURE) Act to expand opportunities for Americans to save for retirement. The EARN Act builds on the SECURE Act and will increase participation in retirement plans, strengthen and encourage private retirement savings, and make it easier for employers to offer retirement plans. The EARN Act strengthens retirement savings in a fiscally responsible way by:

- Encouraging small businesses to adopt retirement plans through increasing the retirement plan startup tax credit and making plans more attractive for small businesses;
- Making it easier for part-time workers to participate in retirement plans by decreasing the number of years part-time workers need to work to be eligible to participate in plans;
- Providing workers and retirees the ability to save more and save longer by increasing the age workers are required to start taking distributions;
- Improving options for retirees by expanding the Financial management

Fix your folks’ roof then help fix their finances

Dear Dave,

I finished college a couple of years ago and have a good job making $65,000 a year. My debt is about $5,000 on a car loan, and I am paying that off as quickly as possible. At the same time, my mom and dad need repairs on their small house, and I am not sure they can afford them. They both work hard, but don’t make a lot of money. Plus, they have some debt. I have enough saved to fix their roof, with plenty left over. What do you think about pausing paying off my car to help them?

— Samantha

Dear Samantha,

You’re a caring young lady with a great heart, who’s also making good money. There’s no reason you can’t do both things. Help your mom and dad with the roof, then turn around and finish knocking out that car payment and rebuild your savings. From what you’ve said, it won’t put you in a financial bind, right? I’m really proud of you for wanting to help your folks this way.

I know your mom and dad work hard. And they’re obviously good people to have raised a daughter like you. But I want you to think about one thing. If you make a habit of fixing their lives without them having a hand in fixing their lives, this scenario could become a nightmare for everyone.

I’d go ahead and help them, but the only way I’d do it is if they promise to let you help them address the reasons they don’t have any money — and if they agree to get financial counseling. I can tell you love your mom and dad a lot. And I’m sure they work too hard to be broke. I’m not talking about fussing at them or shaming them, I’m talking about sitting down and having a loving discussion about the issues and what they can do to start making positive financial changes in their lives.

The fact your folks have worked their entire lives, and can’t come up with money for roof repairs tells me something’s wrong. The fact that they don’t have any money is the symptom. The problem is they’ve made poor decisions and mishandled the dollars they earned. Even if you don’t make a lot, you can still have a little cash set aside for emergencies if you manage it well.

Biden Administration officials put on their recession blinders

by Byron York, The Washington Examiner

On Thursday morning, the Commerce Department announced the economy shrank by 0.9 percent in the second quarter of 2022. That comes after the April announcement that the economy contracted by 1.6 percent in the first quarter of this year. Now, the U.S. has had two consecutive quarters of negative economic growth, which is the popularly accepted definition of a recession. So it’s official: The U.S. is in a recession.

But it is not official. Denying long-standing standards, the Biden Administration will not admit that the economy is in recession. For days leading up to the Commerce Department announcement, senior administration officials made the case that two quarters of negative growth do not necessarily equal a recession, and in this case, although such a situation is exceedingly rare, the economy has experienced two quarters of contraction yet is not in recession.

The administration’s allies are accepting the Biden argument. “Some liberal media outlets are beginning to fall in line with the Biden Administration’s spin on redefining what a recession is,” Fox News reported last week. “There’s been a major push by the White House to preemptively declare that even if the U.S. economy has shrunk in two consecutive quarters, that doesn’t necessarily mean the economy is in recession.” To cite one example, on the night before the numbers were released, Politico described the coming government figures as “the first, possibly inaccurate and certain to be revised reading of U.S. economic performance in the second quarter of this deeply weird economic year.”

But why would President Joe Biden and his senior aides go to such lengths to deny that the U.S. is in a recession? Perhaps the best place to look for an answer is the RealClearPolitics average of polls.

The president’s job approval rating now stands at 37.8 percent in the RealClearPolitics average. Remember when Biden’s rating seemed stuck in the low 40s? It stayed there for six months or so, but around May of this year, the president’s numbers fell through the 40 percent barrier and now appear to be approaching the mid-30 percent range. That is “the worst of any elected president at this point in his presidency since the end of World War II,” according to the analysis site FiveThirtyEight.

Why has Biden gone so low? The economy, mostly. Huge numbers of people believe the country is headed in the wrong direction, and most cite the economy as the reason things have gone wrong. Again, from FiveThirtyEight: “Many factors are driving this overall feeling of dissatisfaction among Americans, but inflation is arguably the biggest reason. Inflation, which is at its highest point since the early 1980s, has consistently ranked as the top issue Americans are worried about. ... In the most recent FiveThirtyEight/Ipsos poll, 62 percent of Americans told us that inflation or increasing prices was one of the most important issues facing the country, ranking far ahead of any other topic we asked about.”

Things are bad now, but they could always get worse. That’s why the White House exhibited sheer terror at the prospect of a recession on top of inflation.

Can you imagine what will happen to Biden’s job approval rating if voters blame him for plunging the nation into recession, in addition to soaring prices? When pollsters ask about Biden, his handling of the economy already rates as the lowest among several measures of job performance. For example, in the most recent Quinnipiac University Poll, just 28 percent of respondents approved of the way Biden is handling the economy, versus 65 percent who disapproved. A 28-65 split is pretty bad news if you’re in the White House.

Thus the White House pushback against even more bad news. “Even if [the GDP growth] number is negative, we are not in a recession now,” Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen said July 24 on Meet the Press. “And I would, you know, warn that we should not be characterizing that as a recession.”

So look for the White House to continue making its case that there is something unique about today’s economy and, therefore, the traditional measure of two consecutive quarters of negative growth equaling a recession does not apply.

If that is true, it would be the first time in 75 years. “It’s rare for there to be two consecutive quarters of negative GDP without a recession,” the Washington Post noted recently. “In fact, George Washington University professor Tara Sinclair said the only time on record appears to have been 1947.”

It’s a pretty weak case, but it’s all the White House has.

“We’re not going to be in a recession,” Biden said last week. “The employment rate is still one of the lowest we’ve had in history — it’s in the 3.6 percent area. We still find ourselves with people investing. My hope is we go from this rapid growth to a steady growth. And so we’ll see some coming down. But I don’t think we’re going to — God willing, I don’t think we’re going to see a recession.”

The people should hope Biden is right. But they fear he is wrong.

use of annuities and incentivizing the purchase of long-term care insurance; and

- Helping first-responders, firefighters and those with special needs save for retirement.

The bill also makes many important changes that allow flexibility for emergencies, like penalty-free withdrawals for terminally ill patients, domestic abuse survivors and those affected by federally declared disasters.

This comprehensive bill makes changes to support retirement savings beyond what can be listed in this column. For more information, a summary of the bill can be found on the Senate Finance Committee website, at www.finance.senate.gov.

I frequently hear from small business owners in Idaho who tell me how expensive and cumbersome the rules are to offer their employees a retirement plan. These employers want to provide retirement benefits, but it is just not economically feasible.

Additionally, our economy is constantly changing. People are working longer. Workers are changing jobs more often and the number of “gig workers” is on the rise. Our retirement system must adapt with this changing landscape so every worker has a chance to save for a secure retirement.

The EARN Act would help address these concerns as it would encourage workers to save so they can enjoy a secure retirement. I look forward to the EARN Act becoming law.

Sweepstakes winner...

The Homedale Senior Citizens float entry, “Little House On The Prairie,” took the Sweepstakes award as well as first place in the community category at last Saturday’s Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Parade.

Winners listed in Fair and Rodeo Parade

Saturday’s parade through downtown Homedale kicked off the 51st annual Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo. The event featured grand marshals Duane and Nancy Ash, Homedale’s spiffy new fire truck, state representative Frances Field and a host of animals, marchers, floats, classic cars, horse-drawn wagons, and riders on horseback.

The Homedale Senior Citizens float, “Little House On The Prairie,” took the Sweepstakes Award as well as winning first place in the community category. Exquisite Salon took the honors in the commercial category, and Job’s Daughters won in the youth category.

Exchange student from Japan returns to HHS

It has been ten years since Yoshisumi Makita has seen the Homedale family who he spent one year with, in 1986-87.

Yoshi is from Niigata, Japan, and in August of 1986, he came to Homedale as an exchange student and lived with Kurt and Edie Weimer. This past July 31, Yoshi finally returned to visit the family that he spent that school year with.

Yoshi has kept in contact with the Weimers by phone and letters over the years, but this is the first visit he has made. Yoshi received an invitation this past April to the Homedale High School class of ’87 reunion, and that prompted him to want to make the trip back to Homedale.

During the year he attended school in Homedale, Yoshi was a member of the baseball and wrestling team and he was the kicker for the football team.

Zatica takes first at National Junior Olympics

Homedale athletes competed at the National Junior Olympics on July 22-27 at Southern University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Jessica Zatica, in the age 15-16 division, won the heptathlon which is a multi-event contest consisting of: the 100m; 200m; high jump; and shot put on one day; and the long jump; javelin; and 800m events taking place the second day. Participants earn points for each event based on their time, length or height.

Jessica only led by six points going into the final event (the 800m) and had to win it in order to place first in the heptathlon. Jessica won with 4,215 points.

Marcus Christoffersen, competing in the age 17-18 division (which includes college freshmen), ran a 21.96 in the 200m trials and a 48.5 in the 400m trials, which despite the good times, did not qualify him for the finals.

SILVER CITY — The old Silver City schoolhouse was filled with people Saturday as members of the Owyhee Cattlemen’s Association met for their 94th annual convention. Aaron Dudley, Anaheim, Calif., editor of the Western Livestock Journal, told the standing room only group that even ranchers operating in isolated locales can not afford to ignore world trade and its effect on the livestock industry.

If they intend to survive in the cattle industry, ranchers must be able to “outfigure” global politicians, Dudley said.

“The U.S. cattleman — particularly one in the West who is being squeezed by taxes and ecological high costs — has always worked hard, but he’s going to have to do some hard and fast thinking in the years ahead to outfigure the politicians and world traders,” Dudley said.

Walter Yarbrough, state senator from Grand View, explained the effects of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) legislation as it pertained to farmers and ranchers.

Yarbrough said that “OSHA is something that is going to affect us. It’s something we need to look at.”

Ralph Olmstead, chairman of the Idaho Beef Council, told the assembled cattlemen that per capita consumption of beef has doubled in the past 30 years, in the face of increasing prices. “It’s an indicator that we have a product everybody wants.”

Gene Davis, president of the Idaho Cattlemen’s Association, told the cattlemen that Idaho ranks fifth in the 11 western states in agriculture income. He added that the state was ranked first in those 11 states and fifth in the nation in per capita agricultural income.

Davis noted that 28.2 per cent of that agricultural income comes from cattle sales. Potatoes furnish about 20 per cent, he said.

Appeal is made for aid toward community clinic

Work began this week on the former Cone Café building, recently Homedale Used Furniture, preparing it for the new Community Health Center Clinic to serve Homedale and surrounding area.

The greatest need at the moment, Joe Bautista, president of the Community Health Center committee, explained, is aid from the community in getting ready for the health clinic operation. Curtains, sizes from 40 inches to 144 inches in width, or furniture suitable for reception room use are especially needed.

A SWINDLER CHANGED BANK.—Frank Almon left Silver between two days this week, leaving unpaid some hundreds of dollars at stores, hotels, meat markets and money borrowed from men whom he afterwards slandered. He is a most ungrateful bumner. He is about five feet seven inches in height, light hair, round face and without whiskers when he absconded. The gray clothes he wore were not paid for. He often speaks of his high order of talent; will “speak a piece” at all public meetings when invited by the humblest citizen; considers himself not born for “menial service” though “mean service” is most prominent with him. He started for Nevada. Virginia Enterprise and Trespass please copy the above once and send bill to this office. We have a few others on the list for a dose of unwelcome publicity.

METEORIC PHENOMENON.—Between nine and ten o’clock on Wednesday evening a large and very brilliant meteor was observed in the east moving along to the northwest just over the crest of the mountain east of town. Its apparent size was about that of an ordinary whisky barrel, and its elevation about ten degrees. In passing from the Lone Tree until it disappeared behind Morning Star Peak, the inclination towards the earth was about four degrees.

When it again became visible in the gap above the Owyhee Mill it was broken into four or five fragments and sank more rapidly until it disappeared finally behind the high rock that bears the flag-staff beyond Ruby.

THE Silver City Guards performed on the 1st as per prior announcement. L. F. Alpey won the Silver Medal for the best shots, and Henry Hyman the Large and artistically executed leathern jewel for the poorest shot.

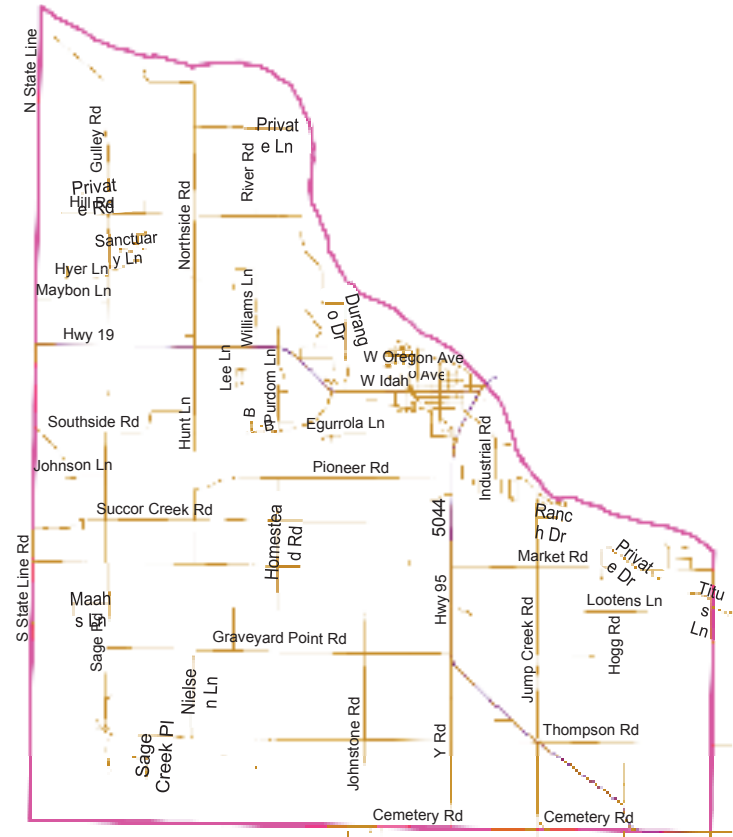

The Ball in the evening was well attended and worth more than its cost to the participants. It is the common verdict that the supper at the Owyhee Restaurant, by V. Blackinger, was the most generous in good things well prepared ever spread in Owyhee.

THE Overland Mail fails to bring our papers — except a struggling one, saying one-twentieth of the number due. Important documents were mailed to us at the State Department in Washington in May last, and are not yet received.

✓ Library: Next step toward vote

library district proponents have submitted a petition with registered voters’ signatures seeking a library district election, including:

- The form of the petition
- The genuineness of the signatures
- The legality of the proceedings
- Any other matters regarding creation of a library district

Canyon County commissioners will take comment only from those “resident electors” within the boundaries of the proposed taxing district.

No such details or restrictions are listed on the legal notice issued by Owyhee County.

Owyhee County deputy clerk Audra Yoshikane said the district formation question could appear on the Nov. 8 ballot.

The Gypsy Jackson Memorial Library still operates under a budget that includes support from the city’s general fund and grants.

Changing the boundary to reflect the school district borders would draw Canyon County into the mix, and any district formation ballot question would have to receive majority approval from voters living in the school district on each side of the Snake River not just a majority in the overall vote.

If voters establish a district, property tax revenue wouldn’t be received until fiscal year 2024, meaning library operation and programs would have to be funded with city money and grants throughout FY 2023.

A deal would have to be worked out for the library building, too. The city owns the building, construction of which was built with an Idaho Community Development Block grant and community contributions, and the old library — now the Homedale Community Center — next door.
