Fleeing auto theft suspect leaves Marsing in the dark

Woman facing felonies in two counties

Some Marsing residents were without electricity for nearly seven hours last week after a car theft suspect clipped a power pole during a high-speed chase.

Idaho Power spokesperson Melissa Thom said the outage affecting about 900 customers started at about 7 p.m., on Jan. 2. Two-thirds of those affected had power restored by 9:15 p.m. The rest had their lights back on by 1:30 a.m., last Wednesday.

"We replaced the pole and the connected wiring," Thom said.

Thom said the outage was caused when the fleeing suspect, identified by law enforcement authorities as 25-year-old Cambridge resident Angela June Loretta Rihari, clipped a power pole in town.

Owyhee County Sheriff Larry Kendrick said one of his deputies was in pursuit of Rihari when she turned from 7th Avenue West onto Main Street in Marsing and sheared off a power pole while speeding out of town toward Canyon County.

Community center gets remodeled

Library programs rolling along in Homedale

Teens and Tweens participants had to find a temporary home last week because the Homedale Community Center underwent a remodel.

The Homedale Library District used proceeds from a $19,000 Idaho Commission for Libraries (ICfL) facility grant to remodel the 1980 library building at 125 W. Owyhee Ave.

Volunteers and library staffers gathered Dec. 30 to start the demolition work inside the community center.

Staff at work included library director Sharla Jensen, Mellisa Mullinix, Kelsey Tooke, Emily Lincoln, and Carol McMichael, and volunteers included three library trustees — Pam Gibbens, Amanda Rice and Kristie Garrett — community volunteers (and board member relatives) Gary Gibbens, Titus Rice, and Gibson Rice, Tyler Jensen, and others.

“We worked on prepping the community room for the remodel, painting walls, removed old floor trim, prepped floors for new flooring, cleaned, and more,” Gypsy Jackson Memorial Library youth services coordinator Emily Lincoln said.

The project moved the first Teens and Tweens of the new year into the Gypsy Jackson Memorial Library next door.

Library director Sharla Jensen said another part of the grant was used to purchase a storage shed, leveraging $2,400 in grant money with donations from RST Trucking and an anonymous contributor.

Valleywide Handyman was contracted to install flooring for $3,000.

American Electric performed some electrical upgrades, too.

“We hope that is the only time the community center will have to be closed,” Jensen said.

Lincoln said a $1,000 donation from the Walmart Community Foundation will be used on the community center and to update library programming. The donation was secured by the Friends of the Homedale Library group.

During Monday’s board meeting, Jensen said the remodel work has seemed to lessen the unpleasant odor sometimes emitted in the community center.

Programs ongoing

- Teens and Tweens — The program should be back in the community center from 5 p.m., to 6 p.m., on Thursday. Boys and girls ages 10-17 are invited to learn the importance of drinking water and spend time decorating water bottles with stickers.
- “Let’s Talk About It” adult book club — ICfL scholar Jennifer Black will be on hand at 5 p.m., on Friday at the library to lead a discussion about “Rena’s Promise” by Rena K. Gelissen.
- Opal Nash Story Time for preschoolers — Retired schoolteacher and Friends of the Homedale Library member Steve Belknap will read a children’s book at 10 a.m., on Monday at the library.
- Teen Winter Reading Challenge — Eighth- through 12th-graders can earn raffle tickets to win prizes by reading books over the next two months.

The contest begins Monday, and the library is open to give students out of school for the Martin Luther King Jr. Day federal holiday a place to go.

Challenge prizes include a bike, a drone, $100 gift cards to Amazon and Dick’s Sporting Goods, a $50 Ulta Beauty gift card, a Groot Lego kit, and more.

Earn tickets by reading books and completing questionnaires. Librarian-recommended titles earn bonus tickets.

Weekly drawings have prizes to local eateries — Idaho Pizza Co., Frosty Palace, Murray’s Treats, Wild Lotus and others.

✓ DMV: Change means longer exam hours; online push slows business consolidation of accounting for the vehicle registration and driver's license aspects of the DMV's role has reduced the amount of time it takes staff to reconcile finances and close the office each day.

"As a result of that, we can offer longer hours at our DMV offices," Nettleton said.

The Marsing and Murphy offices are now open from 8:30 a.m., to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"We previously closed at 3:30 in both locations and opened at 9:00 in Murphy to allow time to reconcile the reporting from the day before," Nettleton said.

The procedural change also helped extend the time during which customers can take written exams. Exams can be taken until 3 p.m., at each location, which is 30 minutes longer than before.

Nettleton said the change comes after county DMV supervisor Tabettha Bailey's idea to combine motor vehicle and driver's license transaction reporting was implemented.

"Tabetha pushed for it to be combined because of the time and headache it was causing for both the DMV staff and the Clerk's and Treasurer's offices," Nettleton said. "I agreed that the way we were doing it didn't make sense, and we set up a meeting with (the Idaho Transportation Department) and the other county offices to discuss it.

"We decided that we could combine it all and that it was going to make everyone's jobs easier."

The DMV clerks have handled both sides of the motor vehicles equation for some time, although state law puts the sheriff's office in charge of issuing driver's licenses.

The change won't affect the Grand View DMV branch, which remains open only on Wednesdays from 9:30 a.m., to 3 p.m. Written exams are available from 9:30 a.m., to 2 p.m.

Expanding hours isn't the only thing that could have customers breathing easier.

Nettleton said with ITD's push to have motorists do DMV business online, things have slowed down at the county's branches.

Although processing transactions online is more attractive because it is less expensive and time-consuming, Nettleton says customers come into the office to follow up on those transactions.

The county receives no revenue from online transactions or the follow-up appointments.

"This becomes a problem when something goes wrong and they don't get their registration, title, etc.," Nettleton said of the online transactions. "Then (customers) are still coming to the local office for help except that we didn't process the transaction or get any fee from it to help keep our office going."

There are advantages to coming into the local branch, Nettleton said.

"We would like to encourage people to come into the local DMV office to process their transactions," she said. "They can take care of everything in one place, get all of their questions answered, and have a local person to call if they have any issues."

Visitors to the Marsing branch will notice another change that probably is welcome — the second customer number machine has been removed. The second machine was added during a previous administration when county customers began complaining about the influx of out-of-county folks who were trying to beat the lines in Canyon County.

"We discovered that it was taking longer to serve the public just administering and explaining the two systems," Nettleton said. "With just one, we can get people in and out faster, and it's less hassle for the staff.

"Since they are so much slower now, we don't have the problems we had before with long waits, and so far, we have not had any complaints."

There was another reason to remove the second machine.

"It was never legal to serve Owyhee County citizens before others, so we just had two lines with certain staff helping each line. Since they never know how many transactions each person is going to have, some lines went faster than others," Nettleton said.

"When the 'out of county' line went faster than the 'in county' line, that really created problems and angry people. So now it is just on a first-come, first-served basis, and it is going very well."

Let 2024 be your healthiest year yet

The new year is already in full swing, but you may wonder how you will get things done to manage all the pieces of your life. I may not be able to speak for you, but after the end of the year, I want to focus on establishing healthier habits that will make me feel better, have more energy, and generally feel more content. Whether we are 6 or 60 years old, below are some tips to help you better control your health.

- First, did you know that establishing regular and on-going physical activity can boost your brain health? This is something that we may think about with the kids, and how there are times they are becoming a little rambunctious, and we recognize their need to get out and work on their wiggles; however, adults can benefit greatly, and not just the physical aspect of our bodies.

At a minimum, adults should be attempting to complete 150 minutes of moderate aerobic physical activity every week. If you are struggling to get this done, consider contacting a “workout buddy” to help increase your chances of establishing and keeping a schedule. Adults who maintain this minimum regular physical activity can reduce their risk of Alzheimer’s disease by up to 45 percent, which is a significant amount!

- What foods are you eating? With the holidays behind us, this might be an excellent time to consider what nutrients could be lacking in our diet.

We can start the process by considering the five food groups: dairy, vegetables, fruits, protein, and grains. As you consider the foods you eat, ensure that each snack or meal includes the different food groups. If you are lacking in any food groups, this can also mean missing out on key vitamins and nutrients that our bodies need to function correctly. Focus on any deficiencies you may have by increasing the food groups that are low or not currently incorporated throughout the day. Remember that fruits and vegetables should be roughly half our plate at each meal, with many benefits focusing on these food groups.

- When we think about health, we mainly consider physical factors like exercise or food intake. While these two components drastically impact our health, we sometimes forget other factors, such as our brain activity.

Consider establishing regular reading or even looking into joining a book club to help address this issue. If you can’t find a book club, consider structuring one yourself.

Brain health can be impacted not only by regular reading but also by factors such as our social and emotional wellness with others. Research supports that reading or playing challenging mental games can lead to a 29 percent decreased risk of dementia for those aged 65 and older. With such high potential benefits available, why not see if working on connectedness helps you notice better brain function?

While several more factors can play a significant role in our health, try focusing on the physical activity, food intake, and brain function tips above to see if you start to see a change. But don’t forget, change takes time and will not occur in just one day, unfortunately. It is supported that habits can take from three weeks to two full months to establish, based on the frequency with which we implement them. Instead of hoping for an overnight result, consider these tips a daily opportunity to take small, steady steps toward a healthier you in 2024.

Phyllis Ann (Peterson Walsh) Hoadley

Phyllis Ann (Peterson Walsh) Hoadley of Marsing, Idaho passed away peacefully on December 29, 2023. Phyllis Ann Hoadley was born to Ira and Dorothy Peterson on April 1, 1942. Phyllis Ann was one of four siblings.

She was a graduate of Caldwell High School, and married David Calvin Hoadley on November 21, 1959. They moved to Grand View for a short time before returning to the family farm below Lake Lowell. After returning to the farm, she then focused on raising her son, David Andrew, and daughter Heather Ann while working alongside her husband on the farm. Phyllis Ann was a beloved mother, sister, aunt, grandma and friend to all around her.

In 1982 David and Phyllis moved the family a short distance to Marsing, Idaho on the banks of the Snake River, and later added ground between Caldwell and Homedale on a farm homesteaded by Phyllis Ann's grandmother.

Phyllis Ann had a passion for volunteering and helping in her community. She helped to start the Lizard Butte Library in Marsing and represented

Owyhee County for the "Idaho Centennial" events in Boise. She had a love for gardening, bird watching and her animals, which she shared with her grandchildren. Phyllis Ann took pride in being a farm wife and was celebrated with her family as "Farm Family of the Year" for Canyon County in the late '70s. David and Phyllis were both involved in many agriculture organizations throughout their lives together. They both were in the first graduating class of Leadership Idaho Agriculture. Phyllis Ann and David loved to dance and spent many hours with their friends at the Elks dancing the night away. As parents and grandparents, Phyllis Ann and David were always to be counted on at every sporting event and extracurricular activity, often traveling to Washington for their grandson's events.

Phyllis is survived by her children, David Andrew (Debbie) Hoadley, Heather Ann (Greg) Hale, grandchildren Tyler (Kelsey) Hoadley, Brandon (Karley) Hoadley, Holly and Hannah Hale, great-grandchildren, Ember and Layla Hoadley, and Calvin Newman, as well as her siblings, Connie and Roger. She was preceded in death by her husband, David, father, Ira, mother, Dorothy, stepfather Mark Walsh and brother, Terry.

Services will be held at Flahiff Funeral Chapel in Caldwell, on Friday, Jan. 12, 2024 with a service starting at 1pm. Interment following at Canyon Hill Cemetery. A celebration of life will be held at the Caldwell Elks Lodge when services are completed.

Woman dies in crash north of Homedale

A head-on collision between a southbound Honda Civic and northbound semi-trailer took the life of an 18-year-old Notus woman Friday morning.

Idaho State Police reports that the 18-year-old woman was driving south on U.S. Highway 95 south of Ustick Road when the 1998 Honda Civic she was operating crossed the center line and collided with a northbound 2023 Peterbilt driven by a 31-year-old Caldwell man.

The woman died at the scene, and the truck driver was transported to a hospital by ambulance.

The accident occurred near Garnet Road, and the highway was closed for about three hours during the ISP investigation.

Schools closed, libraries open on MLK Day

Schoolchildren in Homedale and Marsing will have a place to go to keep their minds occupied when school is out Monday for the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday.

The federal holiday marks the slain civil rights leader’s birthday, and just so happens to fall on the exact date of his 1929 birth this year.

Schools in Homedale, Marsing, Jordan Valley and Adrian are closed Monday for the holiday. Children in the Bruneau-Grand View School District and the Melba School District will attend class, though.

The Gypsy Jackson Memorial Library in Homedale is open regular hours as is the Lizard Butte Library in Marsing.

The Gypsy Jackson library, 121 W. Owyhee Ave., will have Opal Nash Story Time for preschoolers at 10 a.m., and an after-school program for elementary and middle school students at 4:30 p.m.

The Bruneau Valley Library and the Eastern Owyhee County Library in Grand View will be closed. The Bruneau library is always closed on Mondays.

County offices in Murphy and Marsing are closed as are city halls in Homedale, Marsing, Grand View, Adrian and Jordan Valley.

Emergency services for fire, medical and law enforcement will be available through Owyhee County Sheriff’s dispatch at (208) 495-1154.

With Marsing City Hall closed, there will be no congregant lunch served at the Sandbar Community Room. Likewise, senior centers in Homedale and Grand View (Rimrock) are always closed on Mondays.

Post offices are closed, and there will be no mail delivery.

US Bank in Homedale is closed.

The holiday will not affect Republic Services garbage pick-up schedule for the week in Homedale or Marsing.

Stores, pharmacies and liquor dispensaries in Homedale and Marsing will be open their usual hours.

Sheriff’s deputies make New Year’s drunk driving arrests

Man allegedly batters deputy in separate incident

An Owyhee County Sheriff’s deputy is on light duty after getting injured during a New Year’s Eve altercation.

The deputy had his shoulder dislocated, and 31-year-old Little Bull Dodson faces a felony charge of battery on a peace officer.

Sheriff Larry Kendrick said Dodson, a Caldwell resident, also was charged with misdemeanor resisting and obstructing peace officers after he tussled with detention deputies at the county jail in Murphy.

The incident at a residence in the 8000 block of Idaho highway 78 outside Marsing occurred during a 24-hour period in which OCSO deputites responded to 88 calls for service.

Seventy-one of those calls were vehicle stops between 3 a.m., on New Year’s Eve and 3 a.m., on New Year’s Day.

Two of those traffic stops resulted in drunk driving arrests, Kendrick said.

Two Caldwell men were arrested for misdemeanor driving under the influence outside Marsing.

Miguel Angel Manuel Jose, 23, was taken into custody at milepost 27 on U.S. Highway 95 after a traffic stop that started five minutes before the new year on Dec. 31.

The man is out of jail after posting a $500 bond. His arraignment is scheduled for 9 a.m., on Tuesday before Magistrate Judge Shane Darrington in Murphy.

Luis Javier Gonzalez, 31, was arrested in the parking lot of a truck stop/convenience store at the Idaho 55/U.S. 95 junction west of Marsing early on New Year’s Day.

Kendrick said Gonzalez was clocked driving 70 mph in a 55 mph zone on Idaho 55 near Van Road. A deputy made the traffic stop when Gonzalez pulled into the convenience store off Buntrock Road.

The motorist failed field sobriety tests, and a warrant was obtained for a blood draw to determine his blood-alcohol concentration.

BAC percentages for both drivers weren’t available because blood work results haven’t returned.

reported seeing an electrical explosion before the town went dark.

Kendrick said live electrical wires fell on the roadway.

The sheriff said Rihari returned to Canyon County while driving on the wrong side of the road on the Marsing bridge. She apparently struck a vehicle while fleeing Owyhee County authorities.

Kendrick said Rihari could face Owyhee County a felony count of eluding a peace officer as well as misdemeanors for hit-and-run (the power pole and the sideswiped vehicle).

Anyone who suffered damage from the power outage or the pursuit can submit claims with the Owyhee County Prosecuting Attorney's Office, Kendrick said.

Driving a Mazda CX-9, Rihari reached a speed of 60 mph on Sunnyslope Road, Kendrick said.

The sheriff said Canyon County deputies deployed a spike strip, which flattened the vehicle's right front tire. Rihari apparently was already driving without a left front tire.

The suspect's vehicle struck the guardrail near Hoskins Road, and she continued to run motorists off the road on either side of the highway, Kendrick said.

Rihari made a U-turn at 10th Avenue on Idaho 55 and nearly hit the pursuing Owyhee County deputy head-on, Kendrick said. The pursuit ended at Farmway and Karcher.

Caldwell Police began searching for Rihari after 6:30 p.m., after responding to a report of a stolen vehicle at a Cleveland Boulevard car dealership.

Rihari and the Mazda were located traveling west on Homedale Road from Farmway Road, but she allegedly fled an attempted traffic stop.

Police terminated the pursuit when the woman turned toward Marsing on Idaho 55.

Sheriff's deputies from Canyon and Owyhee counties, Idaho State Police troopers and Parma Police were involved.

Rihari was checked out at a hospital and released into Idaho State Police custody.

Friday morning, Rihari was listed in custody in the Ada County Jail in Boise on felony charges of fleeing police in a motor vehicle (two counts), grand theft, unauthorized operation of a motor vehicle causing more than $1,000 in damage, and leaving the scene of an injury accident (two counts).

Trojans lose both ends of tri-meet

Freshman Trevor Paynter stretched his career-starting winning streak to 15 matches last Wednesday when Homedale High School started its dual season. The 106-pounder pinned Weiser's Eric Ramirez in 3 minutes, 19 seconds, but the Trojans fell in a wild 3A Snake River Valley conference opener, 57-24. Paynter also got a second-round pinfall against New Plymouth's Gabe Howard (3:08) in Homedale's 61-24 loss. In an extra bout against the Pilgrims, he beat Blane Ethington, 11-6, at 113 pounds. Both dual meets took place in the Wolverines' gymnasium. Host Weiser piled up 36 points on forfeits, and Homedale scored only six of its 24 points with a forfeit.

Paynter pulls precious Lane medal

Trevor Paynter saw his career-starting 17-bout win streak end, but the Homedale High School freshman came away with a medal from one of the most prestigious wrestling tournaments in the Intermountain West. Even though the 106-pounder lost the final three matches of his weekend at the Rollie Lane Invitational, Paynter has yet to be pinned as a high school competitor. He settled for a sixth-place medal when Mountain Home's Camden Kuntz (25-2) came away with a 10-5 decision in the fifth-place bout. Paynter (18-3) showed grit after pinning Coeur d'Alene's

Justus Pergrina in 61 seconds to start his tournament Friday at the Ford Idaho Center in Nampa. He beat Nampa's Ilan Shank, 10-4, and dispatched Aiden Nelmes of Oregon's Mountain View, 8-0, in the quarterfinals. Minico's Jeratt Robinson, who would finish second in the tournament, beat Paynter with a 16-4 major decision in the semifinals. Senior Brodie White (11-3) reached the third round in the championship bracket and collected four wins overall. In the 220-pound division, White pinned Newport, Ore.'s Landen Pillers in 2:36 and beat Lowry, Nev.'s Logan Jonas, 8-2, before falling into the consolation bracket. He edged Sherwood, Ore.'s Walter Dahme, 6-5, then pinned Hanford, Wash.'s Josh Henning in 4:15. Sophomore Trey McFarlane opened his tournament with a 16-1 technical fall over Lakeland 132-pounder Cole Cooper. McFarlane fell into the

Marsing track coach steps down to make time for family

Ankenys moving to bigger school for son's future

Marsing High School's athletics is losing another program builder. With an eye toward challenging her son Braden as he looks toward a career at the NCAA Div. I level, Huskies track and field coach Heidi Ankeny stepped down from the position she has held for the past five seasons. "We've been feeling like this change was coming but hadn't really planned to explore it until after Braden graduated from Marsing," the veteran coach said. "However, with the success he has had in track, he was really feeling like it would be beneficial to be in a league/state division that would push and challenge him more for his senior year. We didn't disagree."

Heidi said the housing market helped in the decision process, too. The family will sell their home and rent in

Homedale boys can't maintain momentum

A second-quarter surge didn't sustain Saturday as Homedale High School lost a boys' basketball matinee. The Trojans outlasted Kimberly's fast start to grab a lead at the intermission, but the Bulldogs dominated the second half in a 66-52 victory. Homedale (1-8 overall) suffered its sixth consecutive loss, while Kimberly (9-1) stretched its win streak to five games. The Trojans climbed out of a first-quarter hole after Kimberly scored 24 points in the game's first eight minutes. Homedale converted 45.5 percent of its field goals in the first half (15-for-33) and held a 36-35 lead at the break. Kimberly outscored the Trojans, 16-7, to start the second half and held Homedale to just 15 field-goal attempts over the final 16 minutes. Coach Cam Long got 27 points from his bench players, and Homedale scored 17 points off turnovers. McCoy Swallow popped two three-point goals and converted two of three free throws to lead Homedale with 14 points. He also led the Trojans with seven rebounds. Keaton Sorenson added 12 points. He also connected on two shots from downtown, while Alex Sotelo scored on a pair of three-pointers. Luke Henry also scored six points. Homedale didn't get many second chances. Kimberly's Kasen Hammond highlighted his double-double for 20 points and 11 rebounds with seven defensive boards. Jakob Cummins had seven of his nine rebounds on Homedale's end, and he also scored 18 points. The Bulldogs held a 21-5 rebounding edge on the Trojans' end of the floor.

HHS girls dump Payette, ditch skid

Homedale High School blasted Payette on Saturday to snap a six-game girls' basketball losing streak.

The Trojans used long-range shooting to light up the Pirates' dark gym in a 46-22 3A Snake River Valley conference shellacking.

Two of sophomore Belen Asumendi's field goals came from behind the three-point line as she led Homedale (5-9 overall, 1-3 in conference) with 13 points. Kierstley Roseborough added 10 points on 4-for-11 shooting from inside the line.

The Trojans connected on 33 percent of their three-point attempts (5-for-15) with Stella Heck, Tiana Sorenson and Arlett Quezada also hitting long-range shots.

The Asumendi sisters — Belen and senior Olivia — shared the team rebounding lead with four boards each.

Quezada had four of Homedale's 16 steals against Payette (2-8, 0-4).

Sharp-shooting Ambrose topples Marsing

Marsing High School found out why The Ambrose School’s mascot is the Archer in Saturday’s girls’ basketball loss.

The Huskies’ visitors drained five three-point goals in a 53-29 2A Western Idaho Conference victory.

Marsing’s shooters didn’t connect from beyond the perimeter in the game and trailed by 19 points — 30-11 — at halftime.

Held to two points on 2-for-4 foul shooting in the first eight minutes, Adyson Chadez rallied to lead Marsing (4-8 overall, 1-5 in conference) with 14 points. She scored 10 of her team’s 18 second-half points.

Raylynn Vanosdall connected on a pair of free throws in the third quarter and tied with Josie Showalter for the second-most points in the Marsing scorebook (six apiece).

Ambrose (4-9, 2-4) surged ahead of Marsing in the conference standings and into a fourth-place tie with Nampa Christian behind 13 points each from Inara Ries and Cate Perrigo. One of six seniors on the Archers’ roster, Ries poured in three three-point goals. Teammate Krystin Colingwood, another senior, hit a pair of treys for part of her nine points.

Thursday: Marsing 56, Compass Charter 12 — The Huskies ended a two-game losing streak with a victory fueled by a 23-point second quarter against the visiting Aviators.

Although a 2A WIC member, Compass Charter is playing a junior varsity schedule primarily this season.

Lily Thoene scored four of her 12 points in the second quarter, and teammate Brooklyn Roadenbaugh put in six of her 11 points as the Huskies built a 40-7 halftime advantage.

Vanosdall knocked in one of Marsing’s three three-point goals and led all players with 13 points. Roadenbaugh hit a first-quarter trey, and Ashlyn Porter dropped in a long-distance shot in the second period.

Sophomores Sophia Kartchner and Bella Ryals scored three points each for Compass Charter (4-8).

All-around game, victory elude Huskies

Marsing High School put on a boys’ basketball defensive clinic for three quarters Friday.

But after holding Nampa Christian to 27 points in the first 24 minutes of their 2A Western Idaho Conference game, the Huskies faltered then fell, 50-30, at home.

While the Huskies’ defense played tough, the offense was having issues of its own.

Marsing’s shooters managed only nine points by halftime and finished the game 11-for-44 on field goals.

“Our shooting hurt us on a night in which we needed to see the ball go in,” Huskies coach Tim Little said. “We needed a little boost in confidence.”

The Huskies (6-4 overall, 1-3 in conference) connected on just five of 19 tries from the free-throw line.

Eli Ankeny notched 10 points and six rebounds for the Huskies, while teammate Teagan Kinney contributed nine points and six boards.

Donovan Wiles’ game-high 13 points paced Nampa Christian (7-2, 3-1).

Meridian as Braden wraps up his high school career at Rocky Mountain.

“He will miss his friends at Marsing, but he is excited for the challenge,” Heidi said.

Braden’s father, Luke, will continue as Marsing Agricultural Labor Sponsoring Committee director, Heidi said.

“I have loved my 11 years of coaching in Homedale and Marsing,” Heidi said. “I have never received anything but encouragement and support from staff, families and communities.

“It’s been a very special time in my life, and I have so many incredible memories and relationships from it all.”

The coach has watched not only athletes from other families compete for the Huskies, but two of her sons — Braden now and Jacob a couple years ago — dominated Class 2A sprints all the way up to the state championship level.

Jacob now plays basketball and studies at Montana Western, and Braden will be moving to Missoula to run track and study at the University of Montana in the fall.

Heidi will step away from coaching now that she has finished her tenure at Marsing.

“I don’t have plans to continue coaching. I’ll miss it because it’s been such a large part of my life for so long and I love the atmosphere and the kids,” she said.

“I also would love to coach Braden for his senior year, but I feel like it could be really beneficial for him to have someone else pour into him and help him achieve more.

“I’m excited to see what new coaches with different skill sets and experience can do for him.”

With two sons competing in college athletics, it’s time for Heidi to just find a spot in the bleachers, too.

“I am also really looking forward to just being mom and watching at his meets this year and having the freedom to travel and watch his college meets in the future,” she said.

Heidi Ankeny is the second Marsing varsity coach to step down in recent weeks. Huskies alum Shea McClellin resigned to accept the football coaching job at Class 4A Vallivue in Caldwell.

As of Friday, Marsing officials are also looking for assistant coaches for football and golf.

Middle school completion by end of February
Homedale Middle School, under construction since April on Johnstone Road, is scheduled for completion by end of February, according to the on-site construction manager.

Matt Newton, of Beniton Construction, conducted a tour Thursday of the unfinished facility for school district officials, including Superintendent Bob Lisonbee, junior high school principal Spencer Rickard and Board of Trustees president Fred Butler.

Newton said that at this point the project is under budget, despite delays. Construction was originally scheduled to be completed in December.

Landscaping and outside concrete work awaits once the building is finished, Newton said. Lisonbee said the school will definitely be ready by the 1999-2000 school year, and perhaps even in time for summer school.

Our Washington Letter.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 24, 1870.
EDITOR AVALANCHE:

CONGRESS
Has adjourned and nearly all our law makers have left the city for their happy homes; the Supreme Court and the court of claims have also adjourned and to-day the Capital is entirely deserted. Most of the heads of the different executive departments have also left the city for home to-day, the departments were closed at 12 o'clock P.M., and will remain closed until Tuesday next at 9 o'clock A.M. The President and family will spend their Christmas in our city.

Education.
During the last session an effort was made by Congress to provide for a national system of education, but through some unavoidable cause the subject was never brought squarely before the House. A few days ago a motion was made in the House of Representatives by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts to have the subject debated on the third Tuesday in January next, the motion was carried. This subject will be discussed from day to day until disposed of. Education has been sadly neglected in the South and some parts of the West, and it is to be hoped that a bill will pass during the present session, making it almost compulsory upon the rising generation, to attend school and become educated.

OCEAN CABLES.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs have completed their ocean telegraph bill, and authorized Hon. Fernando Wood to report it. The bill is general in its terms, and authorizes the laying of cables are left in abeyance. It interferes with nobody's rights, and puts all cables on the same terms to avoid monopoly. There are penalties for interfering with the cables, and restriction for proper and legitimate telegraphing.

This bill will avoid action of Congress on simple applications, as telegraph parties under the general provisions can severally file their applications with the Department of State, and, complying with the requirements, commence business.

RELIEF FOR VOLUNTEERS.—Last week Senator Cole presented the petition of twenty-one officers, and soldiers of California and Nevada volunteers who allege that they were discharged at the end of the war at places remote from their residence, and incurred large expenses in getting home. They wish to be placed on an equal footing with certain other soldiers who were discharged and who were residents of other States.

Humility most vital virtue as lawmakers return to Boise

Each winter as the Christmas rush settles down and the new year is just around the corner, many of us begin to think about New Year’s resolutions. My thoughts also turn toward the coming legislative session. January is a time of renewed optimism and new resolve, as I anticipate how I can work with state legislators to keep Idaho moving forward.

I suspect that same optimism and resolve ruled the hearts and minds of those who met in the summer of 1787 to frame our U.S. Constitution. Fearing that the fragile and nascent “Union” was in danger of breaking apart, they realized that their task was urgent and critical if the American experiment was to survive. Although they shared a common goal, which was to craft a system of government that would work for a new nation, each of them no doubt arrived in Philadelphia with his own “best idea” of how to reach it.

By the end of the convention’s hundred days, the delegates were exhausted, and there was still significant disagreement among them about the specifics of the document they were being asked to approve. The oldest delegate present, 81-year-old Benjamin Franklin, wisely observed that this was understandable, given that the attendees brought with them “all their prejudices, their passions, their errors of opinion, their local interests, and their selfish views.” In fact, he understood that it was something akin to a miracle (he used the term “astonishing”) to have finally produced a Constitution worthy of their consideration — a system of government that he described as “approaching so near to perfection as it does.”

In his closing speech to the Constitutional Convention, Franklin said, “... the older I grow, the more apt I am to doubt my own judgment and pay more respect to the judgment of others.” Herein lies the genius of Dr. Franklin. In a word, it was his humility.

Idaho’s legislative sessions generally last roughly the same amount of time as those patriots spent in the sweltering summer heat of 1787. Like they did in Philadelphia, state legislators arrive in Boise with their own “best ideas” for how to tackle the issues that lie ahead. They spend 75 or 80 days, or sometimes even 100, studying, discussing, listening, debating, and hammering out legislation that they think will work for Idaho and her people.

The process is not easy. Just as it was in Philadelphia,

Idaho’s Air National Guard squadron must be preserved for national security

Preserving Air National Guard (ANG) fighter units — importantly, the Idaho National Guard’s 190th Fighter Squadron — is a priority as the United States continues to face external threats from adversaries like Russia, China and Iran. These highly trained, experienced and prepared forces are a key piece of our country’s defense. I am working closely with the U.S. Air Force (USAF) to preserve ANG units’ critical role in our national security, and the USAF’s recent announcement that the 124th Fighter Wing would receive an F-16 Fighting Falcon mission at Gowen Field beginning in 2027 was a welcome development in this effort.

I partnered with fellow senators representing states that are homes to other ANG fighter squadrons, including fellow U.S. senator for Idaho Jim Risch, in introducing the Fighter Force Preservation and Recapitalization Act. This legislation would prevent the closure of ANG fighter squadrons at a time when pilot and maintenance manning are at critically low levels. The ANG represents 33 percent of the Air Force combat fighter force and is responsible for 94 percent of homeland defense missions. On average, the pilots and maintainers in the ANG are twice as experienced as their active duty counterparts. Unfortunately, since 1987, the Air Force fighter fleet has been reduced by 60 percent. The Air Force is moving to divest many of the ANG legacy equipment, including A-10s and older F-16s, without a plan to recapitalize them with advanced aircraft.

The Fighter Force Preservation and Recapitalization Act will ensure the Air Force maintains 25 ANG fighter squadrons across 22 states, including Idaho, ready to protect Americans at home and abroad. The legislation would also require the Secretary of the Air Force, in consultation with the director of the ANG, to develop a fighter aircraft recapitalization plan within

Financial management Unemployed dreamer needs equal doses reality, maturity

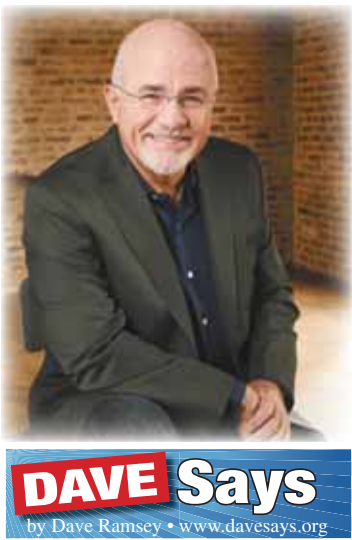

Dear Dave,
My best friend is having financial problems, and I'm worried about him. He's "between jobs" now and making less than $600 a month through a part-time job. He says he's holding out for his dream job, which is about 10 hours away, but even when he's working full-time, he always asks to borrow money or says he's running low. He interviewed for his dream job several months ago, and I haven't got the heart to tell him he was probably passed over for the position. Is there anything I can do to help him?

— Garrett

Dear Garrett,
I assume that since you're good friends, he's willing to listen to what you have to say. There's absolutely nothing wrong with having a dream job. You just have to be practical and realistic at the same time.

This next part is more observation than insult, so I hope you'll understand. Your friend sounds to me like he might be a little impulsive and unrealistic. When it comes right down to it, maybe a touch immature, too. So, I think what we're talking about here is how to give your friend a gentle, well-intentioned nudge in a more realistic direction. He needs to open his eyes to some positive financial realities of life — like living on a written, monthly budget — and not making a habit of chasing rainbows and making excuses.

If he came to me for advice, the first thing I'd tell him is that the most employable people are ones who aren't broke. When you go into a job interview and you're broke, it's easy to come off as desperate and tense. That doesn't make for a very good interview.

The answer to that, when you're essentially unemployed, is to work any legitimate full-time job. At the very least, two, three or even four part-time jobs. Deliver pizzas, wait tables and mow yards. It's doesn't matter what you're doing, as long as you're generating a livable income for yourself. Smile and be professional at whatever you're doing, too. You never know when you might come face-to-face with your next real employer. But none of this will happen if you're working three or four hours a day, and spending most of your time at home in front of the television.

I hope this helps. I hope your friend will listen to you and understand you have his best interests at heart. But if he doesn't, all you can do is hope for the best and pray for him.

Best of luck, Garrett. You're a good friend.

combat capacity. Fleet leveling would temporarily redistribute fighters across the Total Force to prevent the near-term closure of ANG squadrons while fighter procurement catches up. It is a short-term solution to keep fighter squadrons open across the country to preserve readiness and maintain strong national security. Fleet leveling is the best interim solution to preserve readiness across the country. We wrote:

“Pilot and maintenance manning across the Air Force are both at alarmingly low levels. It takes more than a decade to produce an experienced fighter pilot. Unlike the active component, closing an ANG and AFRC [Air Force Reserve Command] fighter squadron results in the permanent loss of hundreds of deeply experienced personnel. That experience, and the millions of taxpayer dollars invested to train them, are lost forever. This loss also generates additional costs and training requirements to replace that experience. Fleet leveling the fighter force will ensure that the experience resident in ANG and AFRC fighter squadrons remains accessible for our Nation's defense in this decisive decade.”

With Gowen Field being home to the Idaho Air National Guard and the 124th Fighter Wing, 190th Fighter Squadron, Idaho citizen airmen have a significant presence around our great state. They have also been deployed all over the world. We are blessed to have them in our communities. As they continue to keep our skies safe and provide steady reminders of strong commitment, strength, honor and professionalism, I will continue to work to back their effectiveness with a strong fighter force structure that reinforces our country's ability to meet threats at home and abroad.

✓ Lawmakers: State legislators should remember Ben Franklin's advice

it's sometimes rancorous, contentious, and downright messy. One way to make it less so would be to realize that no one has the perfect answer to every question or every issue. In modern parlance, this might be called "thinking outside the box." But in this context the "box" needs to be seen for what it is: our own carefully constructed and closely guarded treasure chest of ideas. If we could loosen our tenacious attachment to our own positions, we could more readily listen to proposals different from our own and admit that some of them may actually be better.

Franklin's closing statement to the 1787 Convention included an appeal to each of his fellow delegates to "doubt a little of his own infallibility" and agree to sign the new Constitution of the United States, despite any lingering doubts or disagreements. In other words, Dr. Franklin and every one of the 39 original signers had to compromise before they could ever hope to launch this nation on its path to greatness.

The most effective legislators are those who, like Benjamin Franklin, appreciate the value of humility. They are men and women who can imagine a variety of options without letting go of their own core beliefs. They are the ones who are willing to listen to all opinions without denigrating the ideas of others, weigh all ideas despite any question or hesitation about their viability, and sift through all the possibilities until a workable solution can be agreed to. Most importantly, they are the ones who are not afraid to "doubt a little of their own infallibility" instead of stubbornly clinging to "their prejudices, their passions, their errors of opinion, their local interests, and their selfish views."

As the 2024 legislative session begins, it is my sincere hope that all of us can more closely emulate Dr. Franklin by being willing to doubt our own infallibility. We will better serve our fellow Idahoans by doing so.
